

University of Strathclyde
Glasgow

THE UNIVERSITY OF STRATHCLYDE

www.strath.ac.uk

Tell Strathclyde

If something is not going to plan, tell us.

Tell Strathclyde is a new approach to help you better understand how to tell the University about your challenging personal circumstances and to find the right support sooner.

You do not need to know the right service or use the right words.

Tell Strathclyde

Support is matched to your circumstances

There are options, not a sequence. Staff will help identify what may be appropriate. These might include:

Talk and get guidance

Our Student Support Service or your departmental contact can listen, advise and provide you with relevant academic and personal support.

Short-term assessment impact

A coursework extension may be appropriate for unexpected, short-term circumstances.

Ongoing access needs

Reasonable adjustments may support learning, assessment and exams.

Our Disability and Wellbeing Team support ongoing teaching and assessment reasonable adjustments, but they need to know as early as possible.

Impact on completed assessment

It is important that you tell us at the time of the assessment that you are experiencing difficulties. Don't leave it until you receive your assessment result.

Evidenced circumstances may be considered through the formal academic mitigation process.

START HERE

Tell Strathclyde

How do I find the right support and action?

Tell Strathclyde is designed around our students and focused on common challenging personal circumstances we know you might experience. It organises and presents support options focused on your circumstances rather than arranged by service areas.

Begin by using Tell Strathclyde to explore potential support and then contact relevant support services. What follows depends on the nature and impact of your circumstances.

Talk it through

Your department or a support service can help to further clarify impact and discuss targeted support for a range of circumstances.

Access support during study

This may include guidance, an extension, or reasonable adjustments, depending on your circumstances.

Evidence may be needed

The requirement depends on the support or process being used.

Formal academic mitigation

Ultimately, if circumstances have affected an assessment, information and evidence may be considered through the relevant formal process.

There is no single support route for every student.

Tell Strathclyde

If you need to submit Evidence: privacy and where to get help

Who can help

Speak to your departmental contact, Student Experience Helpdesk, or Strath Union Advice Hub.

Your information

Personal information will always be handled sensitively and not disclosed unnecessarily.

Evidence

Where required, evidence should show what happened and how studies or assessment were affected.

A guide to evidence is available on the website

If you are unsure, ask.
Staff can help you find the right combination of support and action but the earlier you Tell Us the more effective this can be!

Tell Strathclyde

Help is available

You do not need to know the which service or to use the right words.

Tell Strathclyde

<https://www.strath.ac.uk/studywithus/strathlife/tellstrathclyde>

University of Strathclyde Glasgow